BIOGRAPH

THE EXPIATION

BIOGRAPH

Atonement of a self accused wrong. Expiation is invariably the act of a noble heart. It's a self-satisfaction as well as reparation for a deed the world may fully condone, but the consistent mind will accept no such conditions if the conscience is disturbed. The subject is rather out of ordinary, and being beautifully staged and acted will prove intensely interesting.

PET OF THE BIG HORN RANCH

How long would it take you to decide on what your eyes are worth? Of course money could not buy them. Yet many people strive to save the price of a pair of glasses and risk their eyesight. It is poor policy.

VIRGINIA DENIED REQUESTED SITE

Southern State Asks Permission to Place Memorial at Bloody Angle. No Room there and New Choice will have to be Made.

Governor Swanson, of Virginia, and Colonel Thomas Smith, two members of the Virginia Monument Commission, met at Washington this week with Colonel John P. Nicholson and General L. L. Lomax, of the Gettysburg National Park Commission and Secretary of War Dickinson to request that a site be granted at the Bloody Angle for Virginia's monument to her troops who fought in this battle.

The request was denied on the ground that there was no available site at the Angle and that all monuments be placed along the lines of battle only. It was also agreed that no Federal monuments be placed along the Confederate line of battle, and that no Confederate monuments be placed along the Union lines. It is expected that the President will issue an order making this a binding precedent.

When the Virginia Commission visited Gettysburg some months ago it was generally believed that the memorial would be placed on West Confederate Avenue overlooking the site of Pickett's Charge and many believe that that place will ultimately be chosen.

The monument, according to present plans, will have a huge granite base surmounted by an equestrian statue of General Robert E. Lee and will be a memorial not only to the leader of the Confederate troops here but also to the Virginia regiments which took part in this battle.

LOWER END HAS BURGLARY SCARE

Sell's Station Alarmed by Attempt of Early Morning Burglars to Get Booty. Frustrated in their Efforts.

From the lower end of the county comes the news of an unsuccessful attempt to burglarize the store of Good & Kline, at Sell's Station.

The thieves broke into the blacksmith shop of Charles Carbaugh, near Sell's Station, and stole a lot of tools which they intended to use in gaining an entrance to the store. While attempting to pry open a door the thieves were heard by H. W. Kline, who sleeps above the store.

Mr. Kline jumped up and procured a Winchester rifle which he keeps in his room, and started down stairs. The thieves evidently heard the footsteps and fled. Mr. Kline fired several shots after the fleeing thieves, but whether he struck either of them has not been learned. A large rasp belonging to Mr. Carbaugh was found between the door and frame, which was used in the attempt to pry open the door, a portion of which had been chipped off in order to force in the rasp.

Even had Mr. Kline not been awakened by the noise of prying open the door, he would have been aroused later on the opening of the door, as all the windows and doors are fitted with burglar alarms.

There is no clue to the thieves.

ADAMS COUNTY SAVES $1250

Abolishment of Spring Election Means Saving of money to Adams County. Primary Cost is Paid by the State.

The county of Adams will save about $1250 each year through the operation of the new election law under the constitutional amendments, all of which with the exception of the seventh have passed according to the latest official returns of the last election.

Under the new law Adams county, as well as the entire state, will have but one primary and one general election each year. The primary election will be held in June and the general election in November upon the dates already set apart. The February election will be dispensed with.

Figures in the office of the county commissioners show that the January primary this year cost $979.40 and the February election of 1909 $1230.70. These are close enough to the average to indicate that these two elections cost each year on an average of about $2250. Of course the State pays the expense of the primary the county standing the cost of the February election. When they are done away with this expense will naturally cease.

Under the new law there will be one more spring election; that of next year. After that time terms of all city and county officers will be made to conform to elections to be held at this single election will be but a trifle above the present expense of the November election.

The new system is in vogue in New York and several other states and generally meets with favor.

Another side of the matter is brought out however when it is shown that while the county saves from the abolition of the primary and February election, yet many will fail to receive their usual fees as election officers. This money usually proved most welcome to these men and they will miss it severely.

A birthday party was held at the home of Charles Feeser Monday November 15 in honor of Mrs. Charles Feeser. FARMERS WORRY OVER DROUGHT

Must Haul Water or Drive Stock to it. Many Wells Going Dry for First Time. Wheat Damaged by Dry Weather.

Farmers all over Adams County are greatly worried over the effects of the long continued drought which the claim is doing serious damage in addition to causing them great annoyance and inconvenience.

Wells are now becoming dry which have never been known to fail and farmers are up against the proposition of driving their stock to water or else hauling water to their farms from nearby streams. The former plan is generally very unsatisfactory for, if they have to go any distance, the stock is as thirsty when they return as before they were started out. Few farmers in the county are equipped to haul water and so the matter is quite serious.

The 1910 wheat crop will be seriously damaged if rains, and heavy rains, do not come in a few days. The early wheat is already getting yellow in some places and the late wheat will not get a fair start before Winter "sets in" unless the rain comes.

The other usual effects of a long continued drought are being felt everywhere and farmers are hoping strenuously for a heavy fall of rain.

EAST BERLIN

East Berlin, Nov. 17.—Aaron Seacrist and family, were visiting in Gettysburg on Sunday.

We are glad to learn that Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Leib are very much improved.

Rev. A. C. Forscht is conducting a series of meetings beginning on the 16th of November.

The Mite Society of the Zwingle Reformed church will give a supper in the Red Men's Hall several evenings in Thanksgiving week. Everybody invited to come.

L. Babb and wife were visiting in the vicinity of Big Mount on Sunday.

NEW TROLLEY ROAD

A corps of engineers, believed to be in the employ of the state, was at Mont Alto Monday. They went over the route surveyed last spring, through Brennan Hollow to the pipe line and from there to White Pine Sanatorium. The presumption is that they are surveying for the trolley road which Health Commissioner Dixon is anxious to have the state construct from Mont Alto to the sanatorium. There are possibly a dozen cab lines operated between Mont Alto station and the sanatorium, besides numerous teams manned and kept by the state. The fare charged on these cab lines is $1.50.

Dr. Dixon is of the opinion that the state can operate a trolley line cheaper than it can keep horses or transport patients by cabs.

The coming of the engineers so soon after the governor's visit to make a re-survey, is interpreted as a sign that the governor is in sympathy with Dr. Dixon's plans.

PRAYER MEETING NOTICE

In order that the people may continue their attendance upon the series of addresses that are being delivered by the Rev. S. P. Long, D. D. of Mansfield, Ohio, the usual prayer meeting services will not be held this evening in St. James' and College Lutheran churches. The addresses by Dr. Long, a series on the subject of "The Bible," are being delivered in Brua Chapel, at seven o'clock each evening this week; all town people, as well as students of the College, are invited to attend.

Small Crowd Pleased

"Reaping the Harvest" pleased a small audience in Walter's Theatre last evening. The company scored a far more decided hit with the audience than Monday evening and, with the exception of the long delays between acts all were well pleased with the entire performance.

Tonight the company will present the well known play "Carmen" with Harry Moore as "Lucas the Bull Fighter." The company carries all the scenery and effects for this play and the costumes are of a high order. As usual the vaudeville acts will be changed. It is safe to say the house will be crowded to see this popular play.

Case Decided

The jury in the case of U. L. Gladfelter vs. Mendals Brothers brought in a verdict this morning in favor of the plaintiff for $34.70.

WOULD REPAY MONEY WON AT GAMBLING

Will Directs Reimbursement of Persons Who Lost.

Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 17.—One of the strangest wills ever made here came to light when the last testament of George Brown, Jr., noted as a gambler and race horse man, was filed in the probate court.

"It is my desire, as far as possible," the will reads, "to repay every person, man, woman or child, any money that I may have won from them by gambling during my lifetime, and I direct my executors to make effort to learn their names and reimburse them to the full amount with interest from the day the money was won."

Another strange provision of the will is for a tombstone to be erected above the testator and his wife, which will bear only their given names, omitting the name "Brown."

FAVORS CANAL ACROSS JERSEY

Secretary Meyer Seeks New Outlet For Warships.

VAST COMMERCIAL INTEREST

Head of Navy Fears Fighting Ships Might Be Bottled at League Island Navy Yard in Case of War—Will Urge It as Part of Deep Waterway System.

Washington, Nov. 17.—A canal from Philadelphia across New Jersey to the Atlantic ocean, of sufficient depth and width to permit the transportation of the largest battleships, will be urged by Secretary of the Navy Meyer as a means of strengthening the defenses of the Atlantic coast and adding to the importance and value of the navy yard at Philadelphia.

Secretary Meyer will not mention this subject in his report, but his intention is to bring it to the attention of the naval committee of the house and senate, and to urge their consideration of the proposition as one of great importance to the nation, especially in connection with the proposed Atlantic inland water way system.

Secretary Meyer has been thinking of the matter since his visit to the Philadelphia navy yard last week. He is of the opinion that there should be two outlets from the yard to the Atlantic. The present outlet down the Delaware river should not, in his opinion, be neglected or subordinated in any way to the other outlet in the event of its construction.

He believes, however, that in the event of war it is possible that the Delaware might be blockaded by an enemy and the ships at the navy yard be bottled up. To avert the possibility of such an occurrence he would open the canal across New Jersey, so that no matter what might happen in the Delaware, there would still be an outlet both for the navy and the commerce of the port.

Such a canal as he contemplates, the secretary thinks, could be so fortified that all danger that it, too, might fall into an enemy's hands, would be obviated.

The secretary regards this proposition entirely apart from its commercial importance. He realizes that such a canal as he suggests, and as has been discussed in Philadelphia, would be of enormous commercial value, and that this aspect would far outweigh in the consideration of legislators, the possible importance of the outlet to the navy.

But the secretary is prepared to urge that the canal is worth building for the navy alone, and any supporters his play may attract because of its value to commerce will be just so much added strength for the arguments he is prepared to submit.

KILLED BY A FALL

Eugene Unger, Thrown From Horse.

Newark, N. J., Nov. 17.—Eugene Unger, head of Unger Brothers, manufacturing jewellers of this city, was accidentally killed by being thrown from his horse near his summer home at Madison. He was taking his usual morning ride when his horse became frightened and started to rear. While trying to gain control of the animal Mr. Unger was unseated. His neck was broken by the fall and he was instantly killed.

Girl Scolded, a Suicide

Newark, N. J., Nov. 17.—When Mary Nolan, the seventeen-year-old daughter of Mrs. Mary Nolan, of 11 Lister avenue, was upbraided by her mother on Nov. 6 she left the house and threatened to end her life. No word was received from her since, and Tuesday her body was found floating in the Morris canal at the foot of Chapel street. The girl was inclined to be wayward.

Nagging No Excuse For Desertion

Franklin, Pa., Nov. 17.—In charging a jury in a desertion case, Judge George S. Criswell said that the nagging of a wife did not necessarily justify desertion by the husband. Such conduct, he said, is often due to ill health, and a husband's marital vow to "take care of his wife" obligates him to tolerate it. The jury, however, found the husband not guilty.

Common Complaint.

Aunt Mary met her little niece in the park and seized the opportunity to gather the latest news from Marjory's home. And she got it.
"And how is your papa, dear?" she inquired finally.
"Oh, papa is critically ill!"
"He is! Why, what is the matter?"
"I don't know—not much, I think. But he criticizes me, criticizes me, and he criticizes the cook and most everything. He is very critically ill. Ma says so."

PAYS FOR 50 YEARS MASSES

Rich Reading Woman Provides for Will For Religious Ceremonies.
Reading, Pa., Nov. 17.—The will of Mrs. Catherine Archer, Reading's richest Catholic woman, who died last week, was filed in court here. By its provisions masses for half a century are arranged for herself, husband and other relatives.

The fund, $1000, is set apart for investment in government bonds, the interest to be used for masses annually. After the expiration of fifty years the money goes to St. Paul's Catholic Orphanage at Reading.

A permanent fund of $6000 is established to help the charity societies of St. Paul's and St. Peter's Catholic churches, the interest to be divided equally. The estate is estimated from $600,000 to $1,000,000.

SWITCHMEN DEMAND INCREASE OF WAGES

New Scale Adopted at Secret Meeting at Wilkes-Barre.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Nov. 17.—Members of the general committee of the Switchmen's union held a secret meeting here and decided to demand an increase of wages from the railroads operating in New York state and Pennsylvania of 75 cents a day.

The existing agreement with the companies expires on Jan. 1, and the committee decided to notify the officials of the railroads on Dec. 1 of the demands made and allow thirty days for negotiations. The prevailing rate is now 28 cents an hour for a day of eight hours, and the switchmen demand 35 cents an hour. The men contend that the increased cost of living, the increased wages in other work and the general prosperity of the railroads, together with the indications of continued activity, warrant them in making the demands. The men had nothing to say regarding a possible strike in the event of the demands being refused.

Steel Air Hose For Sales

Coatesville, Pa., Nov. 17.—Caught stealing air hose from Pennsylvania railroad cars, William Maroni and Dominick Carlone were committed to jail in default of $300 bail each. Forgers have been taking the hose, cutting it in pieces and tacking it on the soles of their mill shoes. Such sales are sold at $5 a pair, and are essential around the iron and steel mills, especially where there is much electricity.

Just about to depart for the Philippines, but want to thank you before I go for the benefits received from the use of Rheuma. Have been in the U. S. SATISFACTORY SHEEP.

They Must Produce Fleeces and Also Good Increase of Lambs.
An authority writes as follows: The Shropshire is undoubtedly the most popular of all the mutton breeds in America. They are scattered through every state in the Union. Why? Because they are robust, adapting themselves to all climates and conditions. With practical management and care they give a good account on the right side of the ledger.
The farmer wants sheep that will give him a good fleece and also a good increase of lambs. That will give him a good return for his feed and labor. A good flock of Shropshires should average from nine to ten pounds of wool. This sells at top prices. With good care the lambs should average 90 to 100 pounds by the time they are six months old. The ewes are excellent mothers and as a rule raise a large percentage of lambs. Often 50 per cent of the ewes will have twins. Shropshires are not as large as some of the other breeds. One hundred and fifty to 175 pounds for ewes and 175 to 250 pounds for rams in nice thrifty conditions is usually considered a good size.

The lambs mature quickly and are ready for market at from five to six months if given good care. A 90 to 100 pound Shropshire lamb will be fat and in fine condition for the block. Some of the larger breeds at the same age would probably be heavier, but would not be fat. They also generally require a little longer to mature. Shropshires give very satisfactory results when crossed on common sheep. The lambs from a Shropshire-Merino cross are hardy, good feeders and prime favorites with butchers.

A typical Shropshire is a low, blocky sheep, with well sprung ribs and wide back, legs well set apart, giving width of chest and good hind quarters. The body is evenly covered with thick, dense fleece of medium wool, running well over head and legs. The fine exhibits of Shropshires at the leading fairs and exhibitions during the last few years have done much for the breed. While a large number of imported show sheep are received every year, the American Shropshire is making competition more intense.

HOW TO MANAGE A MAN.

Your wedding, dear, is very near. Come, listen to a word From one who's had her number two And fishes for a third.

Don't ever try to boss your man Nor use that big word must. For just as surely as you do Those wedding bonds will bust.

Now, when I got my number one I tried that shelf worn trick. Then didn't he to the courthouse run And get a divorce quick?

But when I caught my number two I tried another plan, And now I'll tell you how, my dear, To manage any man:

Man has a stomach. Hear that, dear? The secret of success is here. His stomach and his heart are one. To manage him, you see, is fun.

Is it a summer trip you wish? Just get him up a special dish. Fill him with tender chicken, try, Ice cream, sweet cake and apple pie.

Is it a diamond, hat or coat, Auto, swell house or pleasure boat, A trip across a Paris gown, A string of pearls to stun the town?

Well, turkey roast will fill the bill And pumpkin pie with flaky trim. Then while he eats just soo and bill And lovey dovey around and trill.

And when that turkey is a wreck And he has stuffed about a peck, Just throw your arms around his neck And you will get a big fat check.

But this last word I am through— Lyspepsia kills my number two. So keep the stomach bitters round Or you may put him underground. C. M. BARNETT

URGES WAR ON SUGAR TRUST

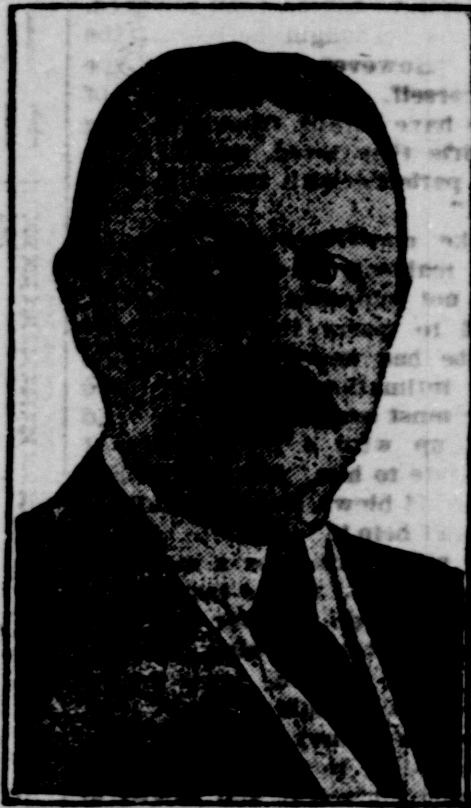

Taft Determined to Punish Guilty Officials.

BIG SURPRISE IS COMING

It is Freely Predicted in Washington That More Than One Officer of the Sugar Trust Will Eventually Find Themselves Behind the Bars.

Washington, Nov. 17.—President Taft and his cabinet are a unit in the policy of bringing to book those sugar trust officials who may be guilty of fraud. The situation was discussed informally at the cabinet meeting. It was the unanimous opinion of the cabinet, particularly the lawyer members, that the present investigation and proceedings against the trust are being admirably and effectively handled by the department of justice and the treasury department.

President Taft has issued the edict, "Let no guilty man escape." He has not done so in any flagrant, sensational manner, but such are his instructions to Attorney General Wickham. The latter official, for one who has been acclaimed a "corporation lawyer" by the administration's critics,

JAMES B. REYNOLDS, Accused of Protecting the Sugar Trust. He is making a record of bringing one of the greatest corporations of the country to book, like that made by Mr. Knox when as attorney general he won the Northern Securities case.

Tremendous Surprise Coming. It is freely predicted here that more than one of the sugar trust officials will eventually find themselves behind the bars for practicing frauds in the payment of customs duties. There is no intimation as to their personality, but there are hints in official circles that a tremendous surprise is awaiting the public. If there is foundation for all the rumors afloat, and most of them can be traced to official sources, the prosecution of the sugar trust will be the great popular feature of the Taft administration and will settle beyond a doubt the president's adherence to the policy of his predecessor of forcing the great corporations of the country to obey the law.

There were no developments regarding the allegation that the treasury department, under the former administration, was dominated by the sugar trust. So far no proof has been furnished by Special Agent Parr in support of his charge that such a condition did exist. The denials of former Assistant Secretary Reynolds stands, up to date, as the answer of the department to these charges.

INDICTED MEN SEEK DELAY

Trial of "Little Fellows" in Sugar Fraud Set For Nov. 30.

New York, Nov. 17.—James F. Bendernagel, the former manager of the Williamsburg plant of the sugar trust, and five employees of the sugar company pleaded not guilty before Judge Hough in the criminal branch of the United States circuit court to indictments charging conspiracy to defraud the government, aiding and abetting and effecting entries of false weights. The men arraigned with Bendernagel are Oliver Spitzer, Thomas Jehoe, John C. Coyle, Edward A. Boyle and Patrick Hennessy. Jean M. Voelker, a sixth defendant to the same charges, is ill and did not appear in court.

The attorneys for the accused begged for a change of venue or a postponement of their trials until inflamed public opinion had subsided. Judge Hough refused to pass upon such a request, and besides giving the indicted men until Monday next to modify or withdraw their pleas of not guilty, set the cases for trial on Nov. 30 before Judge Martin.

There was a report that Speaker Cannon, in revenge on Congressman Herbert Parsons, chairman of the Republican county committee, who recently charged that Cannon had killed his election bills at Albany as the result of a deal with Tammany Hall, would force an investigation of the sugar trust by congress.

Congressman Parsons' father, John H. Parsons, is counsel for the American Sugar Refining company and one of its indicted directors.

$1000 FOR KILLING BOY

Chauffeur Who Pleads Guilty Will Pay Fine Imposed.

Buffalo, N. Y., Nov. 17.—William Krulwich, the chauffeur who ran down and killed little Albert D. Pries last July, appeared in the criminal term of the supreme court and changed his plea of not guilty to one of guilty to the indictment charging him with manslaughter in the second degree.

Justice Marcus placed him on probation for ten days upon the understanding that he will within that time pay the boy's father $1000. Krulwich, who lives in Baltimore, promised to produce the money.

KILLED IN MOUNTAIN DUEL

Fight on Lonely Road Said to Be Result of Family Feud.

Greensburg, Pa., Nov. 17.—Gay Snyder, aged twenty years, is dead from gunshot wounds, and Lloyd Pile, aged seventeen years, is dying from stab wounds, the result of a meeting of the two on a lonely mountain road. Pile's brother, the only eyewitness to the tragedy, is in jail on a charge of murder, while the wounded man is under guard at a local hospital.

According to the sheriff, the men are members of two families who have been long at war with each other.

WARRINER AND FORD WOMAN UNDER ARREST

Alleged Embezzler and His Blackmailer Locked Up.

Cincinnati, Nov. 17.—Charles L. Warriner, the former treasurer of the Big Four railroad, unable to furnish $20,000 bail, is in a cell at the county jail. At the other end of the jail building is lodged Mrs. Jeanette Ford, the alleged blackmailer. The arrest of another man who is connected with the case in a similar manner is hourly expected.

The arrest of the Ford woman followed disclosures made by Warriner in a secret conference with Prosecutor Hunt after the former treasurer had failed in an effort to get a bondsman, and when he knew the county jail was awaiting him. After the conference the prosecutor immediately went to the office of Magistrate Meyers, where he swore out a warrant charging that Mrs. Ford had "received the sum of $1000 on Oct. 1, 1909, which she knew to have been embezzled from the Big Four railroad."

Mrs. Ford's arrest had a remarkable effect on the woman. Instead of appearing hysterical she was very cool and walked to the cell in the woman's department with a smile on her face. When asked for information to make up the prison record, she said that she was thirty-six years of age and a native of Ohio. Her four-year-old child was left in her apartments with a negro maid.

GETS CONTROL OF WESTERN UNION

American Telephone Co. Buys Stock in Telegraph Co.

MAY INCREASE CAPITALIZATION

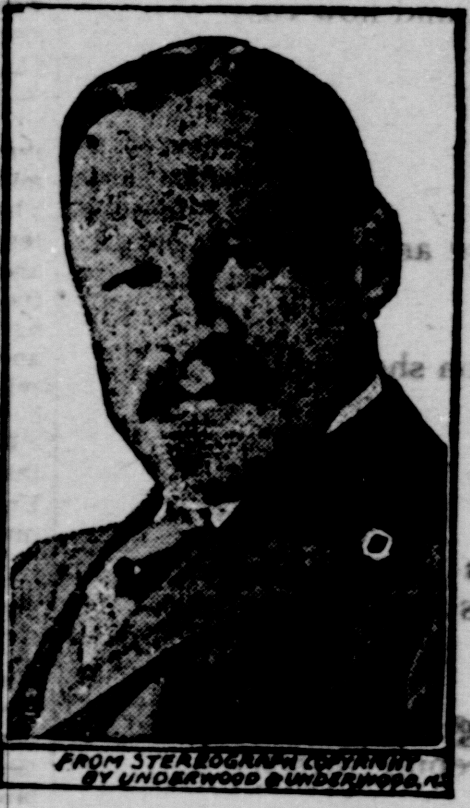

George Gould's Holdings and Outside Interests Taken Over to Make Huge Merger Effective.

New York, Nov. 17.—The control of the Western Union Telegraph company passed to the American Telephone and Telegraph company, and a long step was taken toward the merging of the telephone and telegraph companies into a corporation with a capitalization of nearly $1,000,000,000.

The American Telephone and Telegraph company controls the Bell telephone systems throughout the country.

Announcement of the acquisition of the Western Union—by the company known as Gould property—by the American Telephone and Telegraph company came from Boston.

From a trustworthy source it was learned that the Western Union stock acquired by the telephone company was held by George J. Gould and represents about 25 per cent of the total capital of the Western Union. Stock also acquired from other sources, it is said, brings the total amount of Western Union acquired by the telephone company up to about 25 per cent of the outstanding capital of the Western Union.

While no official announcement is made as to the price paid for the Gould shares, it is learned that the figure was in the neighborhood of $85.

Official denial was given of reports that R. C. Clowry, president, and J. C. Barclay, assistant general manager, would resign from the Western Union. It was reported that William H. Baker, formerly vice president and general manager of the Postal Telegraph company, would become general manager of the Western Union.

The acquisition of the Western Union and the recent absorption of various district Bell Telephone companies in various parts of the country indicates a large increase in the present capitalization of the parent company, the American Telephone and Telegraph company.

The present capital stock of the American Telephone and Telegraph company is $300,000,000 in stock and $228,000,000 in bonds. The Western Union has a capitalization of $125,000,000 in stock and $40,000,000 in bonds.

Officials of the Postal Telegraph company state that their company will remain on an independent basis.

Owner of Hope Diamond Drowns.

London, Nov. 17.—According to the Paris correspondent of the Daily Express, it is reported that Habib, a wealthy Spaniard, owner of the famous Hope diamond, was one of the passengers on the French steamer La Seye, which was sunk in collision with the steamer Onda in Rheo straits, and was drowned. Coal is Money— Save It!

Every time you put coal on the fire, just remember that you are showing money. Don't waste it! If you have one of those old-fashioned hot-air coal eaters, you can save half of your usual coal bills, and at the same time have more heat, distributed evenly from first floor to attic, at all hours, no matter how cold the weather.

MODEL Heating System

Saves coal because it burns it thoroughly and circulates every bit of the heat through the house. Saves your time, because it almost runs itself. Makes very few ashes, and those few are fine and white—no clinkers or black coals. The safest, ablest, most economical heating system, as proved in thousands of homes. Steam or hot water.

LEDOM Range

Makes a big fire with a little coal. Gets all the heat out of coal, leaving only fine white ashes. No need to sift ashes if you have a Ledom. Fire always fine for broiling, keeps the water tank hot, and has a big oven that keeps hot all through. The best range that can be made.

FROM TOWN TO COUNTRY.

How a Lawyer and His Family Built Up a Profitable Business.

This is the story of a professional man whose longing for the freedom of country life led him at the age of thirty-six to abandon the city for the farm. Unfortunately the record of his early struggles is very incomplete. That these were severe is attested by the fact that the owner and his family, with a little hired labor, have cleared seventy-six acres of heavily timbered land, built a comfortable home, with substantial barn, dairy house, silo and poultry houses, and have developed under trying conditions one of the best paying farms in the country. In 1906 the gross income of this farm was about $5,000. It is considerably larger now.

The farm in question is on the west side of Puget sound, at the base of the Olympic mountains, in Oregon. The products of the farm are butter, eggs, poultry and a small quantity of fresh pork. These are carried to market twelve miles over a fairly good macadam road by team once a week. So careful is the owner of this farm of the market he has made that he has not once failed to deliver his products on his regular market day during the past twelve years.

Since this farm has been brought to its present profitable state by the joint efforts of every member of the household it is proper to say that when the family moved to the farm in 1887 it consisted of man and wife, three boys and three girls, the oldest child being a boy of thirteen. The only laborer hired on this farm before the first son entered an agricultural college was a woodchopper for less than three months in 1889 to help to do the first clearing, two carpenters for two weeks in building the house in 1887 and other assistants for miscellaneous pieces of work costing not over $100 during the entire eighteen years up to the fall of 1906. The father and the three sons have done the farm work. The household duties have been systematically discharged by the mother and daughters, and for several years the mother and one of the daughters have run most of the poultry business, another daughter has reared the calves, while the third daughter has kept the books of the establishment.

Readers may learn the details of this farmer's work by getting from the United States department of agriculture farmer's bulletin No. 353.

Be Good to Old Apple Trees.

Old apple trees can be brought back to fruitfulness by spreading a thick coat of rich rotted manure around the tree and plowing it under. If ground cannot be plowed fork it under. The next thing to do is to cut out all dead branches, all cross limbs and suckers growing around the base of tree. These take up the sap which should go into the fruit. The next thing to be done is to scrape off the old dead bark, then wash with strong lye soapy water. Use a stiff brush to cleanse the bark. Ashes from hard wood may be used in place of soap. Various tree washes have been recommended, but there is probably nothing better than good homemade soft soap thinned with just enough warm water to make a good soup. If the manure is of poor quality about one peck of a complete animal bone fertilizer should be spread around a medium sized tree and two pecks around a large tree. Spread it on top of the plowed sod and hoe it in. In November another dressing of rotted manure should be spread around each tree and worked into the soil.

Many an old apple, pear, peach and cherry tree that is supposed to be worthless needs only good culture and sufficient plant food of the right quality to be brought back into full bearing.

Cattle should not be pastured in the orchard. They pack the soil so solid as to prevent a full supply of moisture reaching the tree roots, and they graze the grass so close as to afford no protection to the roots from the hot sun and drying winds.

Try this method with the old fruit tree. This work may be done any time this month, the earlier the better.

Causes Consumption

Do you have to spit often?
Do crists form in your nose?
Do you blow your nose a great deal?

Does your mouth taste bad mornings?
Do you have to clear your throat on rising?

Do you have a discharge from the nose?
Does mucous drop in back of throat?

Now Sold in America

In Less Than Three Years, Parisian Sage, the Splendid Hair Tonic, is Sold All Over America.

There is a reason for the phenomenal sale of Parisian Sage in the United States during the past three years.

And the reason is plain to all: Parisian Sage does just what it is advertised to do. Ask People's Drug Store about it, they will tell you that they rigidly guarantee it to cure dandruff, stop falling hair or itching scalp in two weeks or money back.

There is no reason whatever why any man or woman should fail to take advantage of just what it is advertised to do.

But one thing that has made Parisian Sage so famous is its peculiar power to turn the harsh, unattractive hair that many women possess into luxuriant and radiant hair in a short time. Women of refinement the country over are using it and it never disappoints.

Sold everywhere and in Gettysburg by People's Drug Store for 50 cents a large bottle.

A WOMAN'S PROPOSAL

By MARION MAY MOLT.

(Copyright, 1906, by American Press Association.)

The Princess Alleen, the king's youngest daughter, having five brothers and three older sisters, had no hope of ever inheriting the throne. Those who are born at the wrong end of a royal family are not in an enviable position. The princess must needs keep up all the customs of royal estate without ever coming to a regal inheritance. Her brother, the heir apparent, was betrothed to a girl he had never seen, but as an offset if he lived long enough he would be king. The princess was expected to marry one of royal blood without hope that she would ever be a queen.

The matter did not especially trouble her till she took it into her head to fall in love with her tutor. His father was a count, and the son would succeed to the title and estates, but he was no match for a king's daughter. No sooner did the princess discover that she wanted the handsome and intellectual young man than the injustice of her position occurred to her. She went to her father, the king, whose pet she was, threw her arms around his neck and begged to be allowed to marry the tutor. The king, who could refuse her nothing, at last consented and told her she might send her suit to him.

"But he is not my tutor," said the princess.

"Certainly not," replied the king. "It is you who have proposed to him."

"But I have not proposed to him."

"Well, then, if you intend to marry him you had best do so."

The objections having been removed, the princess bethought herself of the proposal. "However will I do it?" she said to herself. "I've read stories of men who have shrank from proposing to the girls they loved, and I never had any patience with them. I must be brave."

To make matters worse, both because of maidenly modesty and that she had not supposed she would be permitted to marry the man of her choice, she had never given him the slightest intimation that she loved him. She must assure him of this and follow it up with a proposition. "I shall intimate to him," she said, "which way the wind blows, and if he fails to see it I can't help it."

Having vainly tried for a month to make up her mind to the task she at last resolved to do so after her daily lesson on a certain morning. So, the exercises being finished, when the tutor arose to go she said to him:

"Please don't hurry today. I have something to say to you."

He resumed his seat and looked at her inquiringly. There was not much encouragement in his reception of the announcement.

"You told me yesterday," she said, "that it was the turning of the earth on its axis that caused the trade winds to blow in one diagonal direction in the northern hemisphere and in an opposite direction in the southern hemisphere. We are in the northern hemisphere, where the winds blow east. I believe that's right. Now, if we were in the southern hemisphere they would blow west, wouldn't they?"

"Quite right."

"Well, what I would like to know is if everything in the southern hemisphere is transposed? Do the men and women down there stand in a reversed relationship?"

Astonished at the irrelevance of the question, he looked at her in silence for a time, then said: "I am not aware of any such transposition. The only countries lying south of the equator are Oceania, Africa and South America, and in none of these have we any such condition."

She looked at the ceiling, then at the floor, then out of the window. He waited for her to proceed.

"I didn't know," she finally continued, "but that you, being a very smart man, would catch my meaning."

Still more confounded, he scrutinized her face for a clue. "Begging your royal highness' pardon," he said, "I fail to see any connection whatever between your question and anything that pertains to a single organic, inorganic or spiritual condition."

"I suppose," she said in a disheartened tone, "that I shall have to ask you a leading question. You are always asking me leading questions, you know."

"I try to do so."

"At the pole"—she paused.

"Well, at the poles?"

"Which way does the wind blow?"

The young man knifed his brow, pulled his mustache, crossed and recrossed his legs, then said:

"Theoretically there should be a dead calm at the poles."

"The girl turned away impatiently."

"I see," said her tutor, "you did not intend to ask the question scientifically."

"No; I did not."

"I dare say I am very stupid. I've not been used to associate much with the members of your sex. Your language is too subtle for me."

"Perhaps," said the princess, rising, "the day may come when you will understand what I have said to you."

There was something in the look of reproach she gave him that let a ray of light in upon his brain. And, after all, is not a look the only language of love? Her mysterious message was, after all, shot from her beautiful eyes. Yet he could not believe his own. Could this daughter of a score of kings mean to tell him that she loved him? It seemed impossible. But, manlike, he determined to take the chances.

"At last I see, royal sweetheart," he said, "which way the wind blows."

The court journal the next morning announced the princess' betrothal.

IS IT FAIR? IS IT SQUARE?

There may be many, any number of reasons for a trip to the city from a honeymoon to a baseball game. There is not however one good reason why any one who lives, moves and has his being in the Home Town to do any retail shopping in the city.

Retail Shopping is an obligation upon every individual in the Home Town to be done at Home.

Where do you get your living? Where do you sell your labor? Where do you dispose of the things you have for sale? The Home Town.

Your clients if you are a lawyer, your patients if you are a doctor, your parishioners if you are a preacher are from the Home Community. If you live on interest the income is earned in the Home Town and the principal was made there. If you are paid a salary it comes from the Home Town. You would not be able going through the town with a fine tooth comb to find any individual independent of the Home Town for all that is worth while. Every single mother's son and daughter of us are dependent upon the rest of us.

Then the Fair and Square Thing is to give the Home Town your retail shopping support to the limit and give it, patriotically as it were, as an obligation you owe that Home Town.

Should not the dollars spent with and to you be spent by you in the community from which they came? Don't they belong to that community.

Live And Let Live At Home.

OYLER & SPANGLER, Gettysburg Pa.

Australia is the leading wool producing country of the world, Argentina and the United States following closely in the order named.

In 100 analyses of juice from apples grown in the New England states the smallest amount of sugar was found in that from the Ben Davis, 6.74 per cent, while the largest amount, 15.39 per cent, was found in the juice from the Baldwin.

One of the quickest growing trees for purposes of a shelter belt is the white willow, but it is hardly to be commended unless the shelter is needed badly, as it is a slovenly grower and likely to become a harbor for worms. The cottonwood is a much cleaner tree, if a somewhat slower grower. Where the winter season is not too severe the Lombardy poplar serves the purpose nicely.
